Key Features

Monitor Splitting (works with Surround and Eyefinity!)

Split your monitors into multiple virtual monitors so that you can have separate Taskbars, Wallpapers, Trigger rules, Functions, and Screen Savers for each split. Non-full screen applications will maximize to the size of each split, and Functions like "Move to Next Monitor" will treat each split as a separate monitor. Compensate for ATI and nVidia Bezel Compensation in DisplayFusion to prevent your windows from disappearing behind your bezels.

Monitor Configuration and Profiles

Use DisplayFusion to set your Monitor Configuration. Configure the resolution, colour depth, refresh rate and orientation. You can even save your configurations as Monitor Profiles that you can load later using a key combination or TitleBar Button. Link a Wallpaper Profile with your Monitor Profile to load your desktop wallpaper automatically based on the monitors you have connected.

Multi-Monitor Wallpaper

Customize your desktop with Multi-Monitor Wallpapers from WallpaperFusion, Flickr, InterfaceLIFT, Vladstudio and more. Tile, stretch, scale, crop, position and tint your images exactly how you want.

Multi-Monitor Taskbars

Keep your windows easily organized by adding a taskbar to each of your monitors. The taskbar on each monitor can be configured to show all windows, or only the windows that are located on that monitor. Use button grouping, auto-hide, window previews, shortcuts (pinned applications) and much more to help you work more easily with your application windows. Each taskbar can have its own custom set of shortcuts. Taskbar elements on the DisplayFusion Taskbars can also be customized to your liking, including the position of the Start button, Taskbar buttons, and clock/system tray.

Customizable Functions and TitleBar Buttons

DisplayFusion comes bundled with over 30 pre-configured Functions, or you can create your own powerful custom Functions. Create Functions to load Wallpaper or Monitor Profiles, move windows around, change window opacity, toggle DisplayFusion features and much more. Any Function, including custom Functions that you've created, can be assigned to a TitleBar Button for easier access with the mouse, or to a keyboard shortcut for keyboard power users. Functions can also be assigned to the Jump List menus on the DisplayFusion Multi-Monitor Taskbars, allowing them to be run even on applications that are minimized.

Monitor Fading

Focus on the task at hand, by automatically dimming unused monitors and application windows.

Scripted Functions

Need more options? Use DisplayFusion's Scripted Functions (Macros) to script anything you can imagine. Use C# or VB.net inside DisplayFusion to create your own custom scripts. From simple window movement scripts to anything more complex.

Triggers

The Triggers feature allows you to listen for events, like window creation, window focus, desktop unlock, system idle and more. Then you can run preset commands or custom scripts to manipulate that window, or anything else you can imagine.

Window Position Profiles

Easily save and load your window size and positions using DisplayFusion's Window Position Profile feature. Loading a previously saved Window Position Profile is an easy way to quickly organize your windows into preset arrangements.

Remote Control

Remotely control DisplayFusion from your phone or tablet! Change your wallpaper, move windows around, enable/disable monitors and hundreds of other abilities, all from your phone or tablet. Includes support for scripted functions, new in DisplayFusion 7. You can script a complete set of actions, save it as a scripted function and run it from your phone or tablet with one-click. It's easy to setup and even easier to use!

This is possibly the most unintuitive software I've ever used.

When you load it up, your desktop is all but completely changed to something unrecognizable without any explanation as to what the new things do. Settings I had intentionally disabled (having a taskbar on every monitor) all of a sudden got magically re-enabled, yet the setting is not enabled in windows - I have to find it in this train wreck of an interface.

I'll use a specific example. I open up the monitor configuration page and see an option "Monitor Fading". I have no idea what this is, I don't have a PhD in display fusion... so naturally I hover for a tool tip. The tool tip says "When enabled, monitor fading will be constrained to the splits." First of all, of all things in the software that does not make sense probably literally the only thing I can make sense out of is the title of this section "Use these Features with Split Monitors" - it has checkboxes within that section, this checkbox is located there. It's really obvious that each of the checkboxes within this section mean "Do this thing with split monitors" so a tooltip for every single one repeating this obvious information isn't helpful. I DO see a large help button on the bottom-left corner, but honestly it's not my job to read your technical documentation. If I were _that_ in to it, sure, I'd learn it... all I need is for you to throw me a stinking bone, not hit me with a book.

I honestly do not see what other people see as so great about this software. Thus far, it has been far below my expectations for something with a "very positive" review status. I am very close to demanding a refund, but I'm hoping I can work through my differences and manage to use the single option I got the software for - monitor splits.

I will finish by saying... please either A) make the default configuration have _no features_ enabled. or B) give the user the option to select a premade configuration (with of course a "all disabled" option easily selectable). I'm sure over time I may decide to begin learning and using some of these more nuanced things in your software, but I don't like having my desktop experience drastically change the instant I install a new software that I'm not even entirely sure I want to keep seeing yet. Save the "I'm changing your entire life" for the third or fourth date, please.
